MANY PREACHERS PASSED BY CONFERENCE

TIMELY COMMENTS MADE BY BISHOP
AS LONG LINE OF MINISTERS APPEARS
BEFORE THE HIGH CHURCH BODY FRIDAY

"I am a great believer in our age and time" said Bishop Murrah, as he prepared to read from the book of Job, in opening the conference Friday morning, "not in the puffed up parts of it. I have been amazed at the knowledge of the ancient Bible writers; especially their knowledge of physical science."

"I think it is a good thing for our vanity to reflect that the ancients knew a lot, we have never known—arts and sciences lost to us. Job knew that we do not get wisdom from the material world. He said it is not in man, not in geology, not in the sea, neither in gold or precious stones."

"The price of wisdom is not rubies" read the Bishop from his selection from Job. He then read an entire chapter and commented that rubies are of the material universe, wisdom is of the spiritual universe. Followed by fervent "amens" the Bishop said, "No man is wise unless he is led of God. God knoweth the place of wisdom. The definition adopted by the Bishop for wisdom was: "To fear God is wisdom, and to depart from evil is understanding."

"I hope you will remember that," concluded the Bishop.

Before the regular routine of passing the character of the third and fourth year ministers was taken up, the Bishop recognized Rev. W. R. Nelson presiding elder of the Memphis, Tenn., district, who was first licensed to preach in the Decatur district.

Dr. G. T. Rowe, editor of the "Methodist Review" of Nashville, was introduced to the conference, also the editor of the Alabama Christian Advocate at the request of Dr. L. C. Branscomb, former editor.

Frank Willis Barnett was cordially received by the Bishop when Dr. Barnett asked the full co-operation of the members of the conference in getting up his Alabama History.

When the long list of advancing ministers was called, Bishop Murrah made timely comments. He would say often that better roads, and free mail delivery, were making the country the place to live now, and that if the church did not hold the country, it would loose greatly. He said apropos of ministers moving around—"I believe in the itineracy, but not in perpetual motion. I like a modest man; but have not got much respect for a timid one," he said, when ministers made low spoken reports.

"In this age, we will never accomplish any thing, unless our church newspapers are appreciated." At the close of the task of passing the classes of the third and fourth years, the Bishop, declared that he had been "greatly stimulated" by the excellent showings. He said that he had held conferences when he was greatly humiliated, at such times, and had "looked around to see if members of other church bodies were noticing the poor reports and the looks of the preachers."

Both Doctors Branscomb and Glasgow, who have been on the examination boards for long years declared that this year was the best one they had experienced in many a year. The following is the list of ministers passing to the third and fourth years. Members who are in the fourth year and have passed the character and mental examinations are said to be "in full connection."

Another Murder Witness Is Found
2 BANDITS SHOT TO DEATH

JACK KENNEDY AND HARVEY LOGAN ARE SLAIN AND LETTERS STOLEN, RECOVERED

"Quail Hunter" and Pal Make Last "Hunt" In Missouri Woods

MANY ROBBERIES LAID NOTED BANDITS DOOR

Movements For The Past Several Weeks Had Been Watched

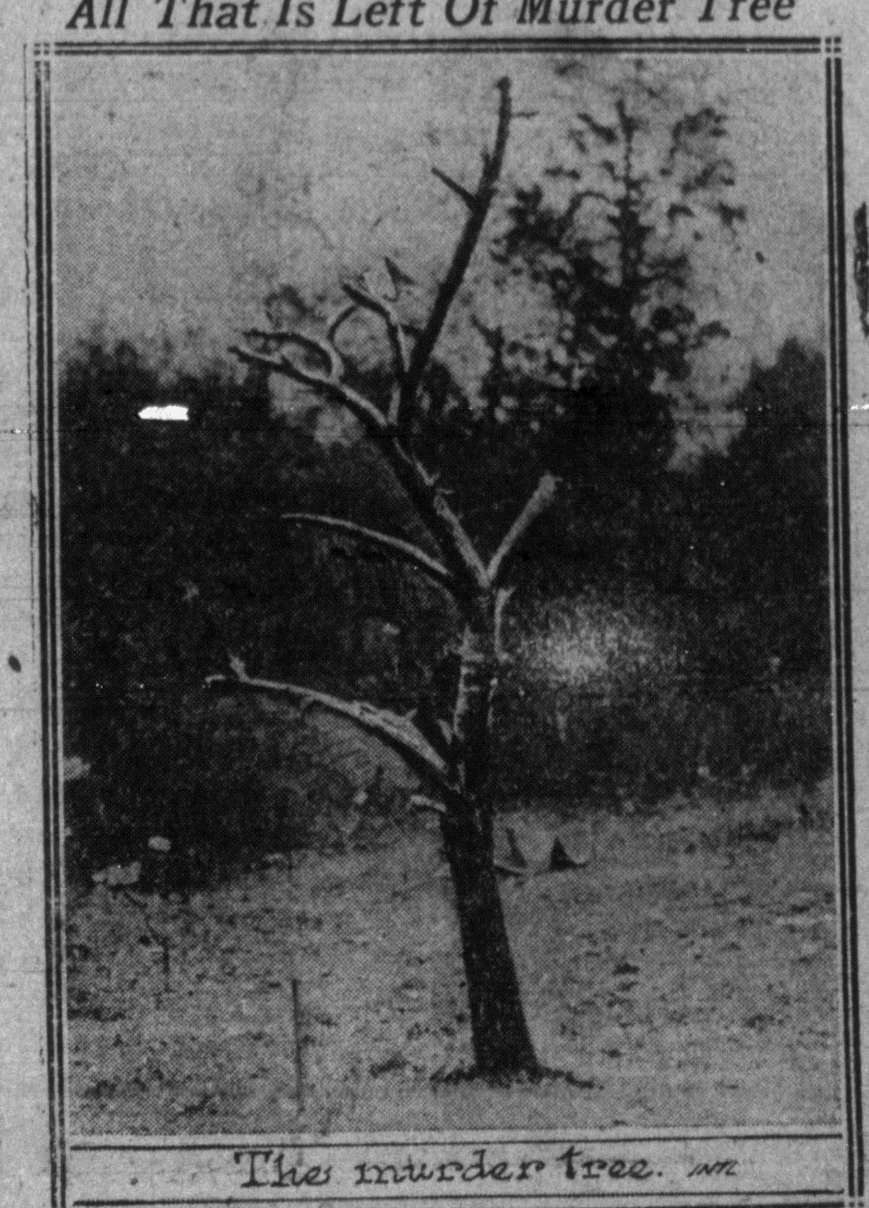

(Associated Press.)
WITTENBERG, Mo., Nov. 3.—Jack Kennedy, "the quail hunter," Missouri train robber, and Harvey Logan, former railroad man, were shot and killed early today by officers after the bandits had robbed a mail car on a southbound Frisco passenger train. The stolen mail, about 100 registered letters, was recovered.

Six postoffice inspectors, three Frisco special agents and two deputy sheriffs of Scott county, were waiting near the scene of the robbery, which had been anticipated through previous watching of Kennedy's movements.

The bandit had been representing himself as a quail hunter in this section for several weeks.

Kennedy and his companion were making for their automobile with the stolen mail when ordered to halt by the officers. The bandits reached for their weapons, according to the inspectors, and the latter opened fire.

Kennedy has a record of seven train robberies within three years, 1896 to 1899 and has served twelve years in the Missouri penitentiary for the latest of those robberies. He has been at liberty since 1912 and his movements for the last several weeks have been under constant surveillance.

This blighted stump is all that morbid curiosity hunters have left of the beautiful crab-apple tree under which Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, of New Brunswick, N. J., and his "Wonder Heart" choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills kept their trust and under which they were shot to death on the deserted Phillips Farm.

Kiwanis Extend Visitors Welcome At Weekly Meeting; Delegates Are Heard

With talks by Bishop H. M. Dobbs, Dr. George Stewart of Birmingham, D. R. Frank Willis Barnett and others and Big Chief Calvin presiding, the luncheon of Kiwanis at their club rooms last night was an occasion filled with more than ordinary interest. Quite a number of guests were present and the Kiwanis extended all a warm welcome, each member vying with the other in their efforts to show the many distinguished men the appreciation of having them as their guests.

In the brief address of Bishop Dobbs he brought greetings from the people of Brazil to the people of the United States and said ignorance and selfishness was the greatest menace to man in giving to the Morgan Ki-

Held On Charge Of Slaying Brother

(By Associated Press.)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 3.—A murder charge was filed today against A. R. Bowen, who last night shot and killed his brother, W. C. Bowen as the latter, in custody of officers, alighted from a train from Muskogee where he was arrested on a charge of failure to provide for his wife and children.

Bowen told authorities that he slew his brother because the latter had boasted that he was the father of A. R. Bowen's children.

Both men had been divorced.

CUSTOM OFFICIALS EXPECTING WAVE OF LIQUOR TO BREAK ON SHORES OF AMERICA

Governors of Two States Asked To Enlist Services Of County Sheriffs

HARBOR POLICE ALREADY KEEPING SHARP LOOKOUT

Recent Decision On Three Mile Limit Seizures Blamed For Rush

(Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Customs officials are planning to ask the governors of New York and New Jersey to enlist the services of sheriffs in coastal counties in aiding to check the wave of liquor running, which is expected to break on these shores with the arrival of a fleet of British schooners from the Bahamas within the next few days.

The New York harbor police already have been asked to keep a sharp lookout for rum runners.

Cable advices from Nassau, received today at the customs house, stated that six schooners, with about 100,000 cases of liquor, had cleared during the week ending October 31. This was said to be a record number in one week since the prohibition amendment became effective.

The recent decision that foreign vessels could not be touched outside the three mile limit, unless it could be proved that they were getting in touch with shore and violating American laws through the use of their own small boats, was held responsible by customs officials for the departure of the fleet.

Conviction that extensive rum running enterprises are being backed by wealthy interests was reiterated by the authorities.

Reign of Sultan Is Declared At End

(Associated Press)
CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 3. The Angora assembly last night decided unanimously that it is invested with sovereign rights and that the Turkish Nationalist government is the keystone of the Caliphate and today the newspapers carry these headlines:

"Ottoman Empire collapses. In its place there has arisen new National Turkish state. Sultanate abolished."

The decision of the Angora assembly was made known in the following terms:

"The palace of the Sublime Porte, having through corrupt ignorance for several centuries provoked numerous ills for the country, has passed into the domain of history. Today the era of liberation has, at last, been entered into. The Turkish nation, in view of the treason in the palace of the Sublime Porte has proclaimed its own organic statute."

SECOND WOMAN IS SAID TO HAVE SEEN MURDER PARTY THE NIGHT OF SLAYING

ALL WITNESSES ARE SUMMONED TO COURT

Understood All Statements Will Be Checked Again By The Authorities

(Associated Press.)
NEW BRUNSWICK, Deputy Attorney General Wilbur A. Mott has discovered another woman eye witness of the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, according to reports here today.

Her identity is said to be known only to Mr. Mott and Detective James F. Mason, chief investigator. Neither would say whether the woman actually saw the commission of the crime or merely saw the principals on the Phillips farm on the night of the murder.

All persons connected with the case, with the exception of the slain pastor's widow, Mrs. Frances Noel Stevens Hall, were summoned to the courthouse today by Mr. Mott for a checking, it was reported, of evidence to be submitted to the grand jury.

The investigators, it was learned, intend to interrogate the persons in the order in which they appeared in the case.

The statements made by Mrs. Hall Wednesday, when she answered a long questionnaire propounded by newspaper men, probably will be taken as her story for the grand jury, it was said and it was for this reason that she was not called today.

James Mills, husband of the slain choir singer, visited the scene of the crime for the first time last night. He declared then that he thought the authorities had made a mistake in their failure to arrest all members of both families immediately.

"They might have learned something then," he said, "but it is too late now."

Mills added that he believed the eye witness story told by Mrs. Jane Gibson, the farm woman of Hamilton Road.

VISITORS SPEAK TO DECATUR STUDENTS

The chapel exercises at the Decatur public schools, are being addressed each morning during the conference by distinguished ministers and writers. Dr. Frank Willis Barnett and Editor M. E. Lazenby spoke yesterday morning, Dr. Joe I. Morris Wednesday and Dr. J. A. J. Brock, on Tuesday. President Guy Snively, of Birmingham College, spoke this morning, and his sentiments were warmly received by the students that filled the spacious auditorium. Superintendent W. W. Benson introduced Dr. Snively.

GREAT ATTAINMENTS.

It is a matter of pride to all to note the rapid progress which is being made in other fields by Morgan county boys, who completed the studies in the public schools and higher branches taught here, and are still forging ahead, as they are pursuing at other institutions of learning. The record of John Sparkman, reared near Hartselle, walking to school from his country home in all kinds of weather to attend school, graduating with honors from the M. C. H. S., then going to the state University, being honored just recently with the presidency of the newly organized State Council of College Y. M. C. A.'s of Alabama. He is now studying law at the state University, having graduated in general studies in 1921. Since going to the University, John Sparkman has had all the honors conferred upon him which a student can win. This is but one example of many which might be cited, of Morgan county boys who have made good in every undertaking, and who are not yet up the ladder which they have set as their standard.

It is not discrediting to say that Mr. Sparkman was a poor boy, but on the other hand it is to his credit, for it shows to those who know, that his climb was an up hill business, and how splendidly he has acquitted himself, only makes his record shine more brilliantly.

His career is being watched with more than passing interest by his many friends in this county, who predict that he will be one of the noted men of the state, when he finishes equipping himself for the duties of an active life.

COMMUNITY INTEREST

Frequently trouble arises from the fact of a misunderstanding. This could be avoided to a great extent if there was a public forum, at which a community of interests could meet and discuss the various questions and things which affect them as a community, and a better feeling would be the result. The free discussion of vital questions is always wholesome for a community, town or city, and if there be a freedom from petty jealousies, which in so many cases arise and thwart many good foundations, seeking fields of community usefulness, even before the superstructure is begun.

A community divided against itself, is like a family in the same condition, it cannot stand. To have stated times of such meetings, where in a calm positive way the facts could be discussed on public occasions, of questions which affected that particular town, city or community, could not fail of splendid results, if all were in the right frame of mind, and had but one idea in mind, that of being of benefit to the section where each reside.

WARNING AGAINST THE BATHTUB.

We do not know a great deal about Dr. Ralph Bernstein, and so do not know whether he knows a great deal about bathtubs and water or not. But we do know that he is quoted by a New York paper as saying that he thinks the race is inclined to bathe overmuch. He advises Americans against what he terms the excessive use of water on the skin and against the daily bath.

We have gone too far with this thing, however, to stop now on the suggestion of Dr. Bernstein. Besides, the good doctors are not in agreement among themselves as to the harmful or helpful effects of frequent baths, although we believe an overwhelming majority of them disagree with Dr. Bernstein.

But the bath tub has been "sold" to the American people. They like it because it gives them pleasure and comfort. They thoroughly convinced that it does not harm the skin to put water on it at frequent intervals—that is, most Americans are convinced of that. Some appear to be in doubt if we may judge them from their customs.

The bathtub is an institution, both in the home and in the hotel, while the swimming-pool and stream are in high favor among people of all classes and conditions.

There was a hotel man in New York who, it is said, 20 years ago, conceived the idea that the hotel with a private bath to every room let at the minimum rate, would prove extremely popular with the traveling public. Current history tells us that he has lived to see the day when his judgment is vindicated.

We have not seen the text of Dr. Bernstein's theory. We do not know the basis for his radical views. But we are curious to know how he explains the healthy condition of people's hands in view of the fact that hands are washed more frequently and thoroughly than other parts of the body.—Montgomery Advertiser.

It may not be out of place to state that, The Albany-Decatur Daily has filled the field of local journalism in a manner satisfactory to its management and we hope to the public, and judging from the numerous good wishes accorded us from time to time, there is evidence not lacking, to support the claim that our readers approve our policy. The policy of this paper has been continuous from the very start, to refrain from those things which would wound, or cause a sting already penetrating, to penetrate deeper. We could never see anything to be gained by a policy of tending to wound. Our paper goes into the homes of our readers, and those of tender years have access to its columns, and it is our one aim and desire to print a paper fit to be read by every member of the home, from the youngest child to the oldest head. We frequently go out of our way to compliment when in our judgment it is deserved, and while we may make mistakes in our decision of matters which come to our attention from time to time, the one idea uppermost in our minds is that our paper shall have a standard, and that the standard of right and justice.

HUGHES IS DISAPPOINTING.

The United States has been invited by Great Britain, France and Italy to participate in the conference at Lausanne at which an effort will be made to bring about peace in the Near East.

A note from the American Government has been delivered to the governments of Great Britain, Italy and France, declining the invitation.

We will, however, send observers!

We have had an observer on the Reparations Commission all during the Harding administration.

We have had an observer at every meeting of the Supreme Council since Mr. Harding took office.

What these observers have observed never has been made known to the people of the United States by its State Department.

But the people of the United States have observed for themselves that conditions in Europe are no better than they were when Mr. Harding took office, and in some respects they are a whole lot worse.

The role of silent observer has become tiresome and distasteful to American citizens.

Speaking at Boston last Monday night, Secretary Hughes stated that this government had done everything that it could do during the recent Near East crisis.

His excuse for not having taken more militant action was that the United States is not at war with Turkey and cannot afford to interfere in political disturbances in Europe.

In other words, Mr. Hughes suggests that he is averse to our participation in Europe's affairs, unless Europe punches us in the nose and kicks us in the pants first.

As America views the Turkish situation, it is something far greater than a local disturbance. The advance of the Turk was an attack upon Christianity. We pose as the greatest Christian nation of the world. Are we to sit idle—are we to refuse even to indite a note of protest when the very people who have been our charges; the very people who have been brought into the Christian organization through our efforts; the very people who have been led to believe that Christianity was the great goal of desire through our representations; the very people who have been educated, clothed and fed by American women and men sent there for that purpose and maintained there by our contributions—are we to sit by and observe in silence while the Turk ravishes Christian women and wantonly slays the children and the men?

We gather from Mr. Hughes that this is the policy of the administration. We gather from the silence of the administration on the Turkish atrocities that this is to be the policy of the administration. We gather from Mr. Hughes' note to European nations and his Boston address that, while we are not "desirous of relinquishing rights enjoyed in common with other powers," we have no compunction whatever of relinquishing responsibility.

Mr. Hughes says we are "not unconcerned with the humanitarian interests involved," but we can do nothing to preserve the interests of Christianity in the Near East.

If the "humanitarian interests involved" cannot take care of themselves, so much the worse for them. All we can do is observe.

Mr. Hughes says we are interested in certain rights, such as the protection of philanthropic, educational and religious institutions in the Near East, and the freedom of the Straits is a matter of concern to us, but the interest is only that of the observer, not of one who is prepared to back up any violation of our interest.

A year ago Mr. Hughes made a statement of policy, the significance of which now is emphasized. In that statement, he pointed out that the United States would be concerned only where our "material interests" were involved.

"Material interests," we take it, are oil concessions and other wealth-producing concessions which American citizens have obtained in foreign countries.

Let the Turks raid an American oil property; let the Mexicans destroy an American oil property, and see how quick the concessionaire will get action from the State Department.

But let American-endowed institutions be pillaged; let wards of American benefactors be attacked and murdered; let American welfare workers even be slain, and witness the State Department excuse: "We are sorry, but what can we do?"—Nashville Tennessean.

THE WOMEN KICK OUT OF HARNESS.

We men like to think that the ladies have always been our friends, even though history shows that we did not help them take the plunge into Emancipation. Personally, we certainly do not take as an unfriendly act the decision of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs to denounce and renounce long skirts.

The New York Federation goes on record as defying the designers who ordered the ladies to wear skirts that all but touch the ground. They pledge themselves to disregard the order and to stick to hygienic, sanitary practices. They adopted a resolution, which the New York Herald informs us, speaks for 300,000 women we know about—how many more, it would be difficult to say—and this resolution puts New York women on record as thoroughly dissatisfied with the command to wear long skirts.

The Federation's sensible resolution reads as follows—and we suggest that it is a model for other Federations:

As designers and dressmakers of women's apparel are now introducing garments whose edges very nearly or quite sweep the ground, and as such clothes bring germ laden dirt into the home, thereby exposing to greater danger its hygiene and sanitation, the federation protests against such dictation and urges all women in the interest of health and safety to insist that their garments, including draperies and panels, be not nearer the ground than seven inches and cut in such manner and and with sufficient material to permit of perfect freedom of all part of the body.

People joke much about the length of skirts, but there really is a serious side to the question. The fact is that the old skirts which swept the ground gathered dust and germs, and not only became unsanitary, but were easily soiled to a noticeable extent. Moreover, the trailer isn't pretty and nobby. Short skirts—taken in moderation, as it were—are much to be preferred for these reasons, if for no other.—Montgomery Advertiser.

The history of the U. S. is the most interesting of any in the whole range of historical narratives. The fast growth of her people in an industrial way; her great development in science and invention; her religious and school development have been of a permanent character, and have elicited the admiration of the whole world. She has taken the initiative in many of the great inventions of the age, and her scientists have kept pace and outdistanced those of other countries in many lines of discovery.

If the Armenians had had any property worth while, the Christian nations would have either gotten hold of it, or arranged to have it protected until they could get at it.

None but Republican party leaders have got the nerve to compliment the present administration as a success.

MRS. FELTON ON GEORGE HARVEY' LATEST.

It was left to woman, and very naturally, and properly, to deliver the knock-out blow to George Harvey and his views of the Ten Commandments and women whom he affects to believe, have no souls. Mrs. W. H. Felton, recently appointed United States senator from Georgia, the first woman in America to have this distinction, says Mr. Harvey's views on the Ten Commandments did not appeal to her, and she proceeded to tell why and in a very few words makes George appear like an ambitious, but amateur effort at declamation at the closing exercises of some common school.

There is nothing in the Ten Commandments about the female sex, and all references are to men, therefore, George affects to believe that women have no souls. And this is the way Mrs. Felton comes back at the American ambassador in London, who is a safe distance away at a critical time:

"Women are fully subject to the civil laws embodied in the Ten Commandments. They can be fined, imprisoned and executed as violators of the laws—emphasized by Moses on the famous tablets of stone.

"Ambassador Harvey should don his long breeches and plain hat and give the people over there a little plain talk; that would be 'good for their wholesome,' to use an old darkeyism.

"Your ancient Moses was a champion law-giver to the children of Israel. He is only in disfavor with law-breakers as I see it, Ambassador Harvey would do well to talk plain common sense and less of buncombe."

She thinks the American ambassador should talk sense instead of nonsense, and suggests that "Mr. Harvey could have advised the English people that debt-paying was a wholesome virtue," and he would have said something worth while.

George Harvey, like his predecessor Paige, seems to be more of a joke than a real man; but the latter had, as the former has, very exalted opinion of himself. In fact as Paige was in a class all to himself, so is Harvey. There must be something in editing a magazine that lifts the ordinary mortal above his fellow man. Paige was getting bigger than Wilson, the president of the United States. Harvey promises to wind up bigger than Harding, who gave him his appointment.—Montgomery Journal.

OPEN GRATE TAKES HEAVY TOLL OF LIFE IN ALABAMA.

The deadly open grate is with us again for another winter's season. It needs careful and constant watching. Its victims each year are numerous, always they are women and children whose clothing catch fire from the open blaze.

The Birmingham Age-Herald calls attention to the death toll of fires, many of them due to the open grate, in Alabama during the past three years. The total deaths due to fires are given by State Fire Marshal W. J. Williams, at 573. Think of it. Five hundred and seventy-three lives sacrificed. Surely this astounding figure will make people more careful. The grates often are necessary, but the loss of life is not, and if care is taken, the number of open grate victims can be reduced greatly.

In addition to the loss of life from fires, not always grate fires, of course, a property loss of $10,000,000 was sustained in Alabama during the past three years. This is a heavy price to pay for fires when most of them are preventable. The life lost is the principal consideration in the open grate matter, and it is the thing we must guard against constantly.

The Birmingham Age-Herald says of the open grate:

"Winter is again close by. Every household using the open grate can provide a fender for protection of the children. And there are all sorts of stoves that can take the place of the open grate, will burn much less coal and afford greater warmth with a tenth of the danger.

"Time will come when the open grate will be regarded as a relic of barbaric days and there will be no such article. Meanwhile, fenders do not cost much and their general installation will save many lives."—Anniston Star.

Our English cousins rioted about one hundred and one hundred and fifty years ago, because improved machinery made jobs less plentiful, if they had won, what would we have done without flying machines and especially automobiles.

Summer seems to have taken Autumn's job this year—for we are entering winter, and it is still warm weather.

As to the weather: First class Autumn Weather, thank you.

Evidence of Travel On Highway Given

An evidence of the immense travel on the Bee Line highway between here and Hartselle, 27 cars were met coming this way between the hours of six and seven o'clock Thursday evening, from the corporate limits of Albany south, to the corporate limits of Hartselle north.

A large number of the cars were large ones, and carried from five to seven passengers. Making the average five to the car, there would have been 135 persons coming toward this point on about 10 miles of the highway. During the morning and afternoon, the number of cars making this road is much larger. Some idea of the large number of passenger hauled over this stretch of road can be gained from these facts. It will take the best constructed roadways known to the road building art, to maintain a road where the travel is so heavy. The road is rough, and in very little better condition before this point and Hartselle, than before the recent work done on it, at an expenditure of several thousand dollars.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad has a large force of men working on the bridge across Flint creek, that portion of it which was wrecked about 60 days ago. Since that time all trains have been using the south bound track, switches being constructed north and south of the creek. The bridge is a double one in two sections. Only the damaged north side of the bridge will be built new at this time.

A CARD

I take this opportunity of expressing my deepest regret and great sorrow to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Johnson and family, also to the public, for the death of little Neil Johnson, caused by being hit by my car on Mount street Tuesday evening. This is my first and only accident and I hope will have the sympathy and not the censure of all concerned, as I was powerless to prevent the matter. It was all so sudden and would have happened just the same had it been my own child. I have no words that will express my suffering and sorrow caused by this sad affair. My friend that were with me in the car at the time of the accident join me in extending our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

Malays And Burmans Are Friendly
To A "Lone Traveler," Briton Finds

(Associated Press.)
RANGOON, Nov. 3.—Charles W. Blythe, an Englishman who is journeying on foot from Singapore to Calais, France, and London, recently arrived in Rangoon and is now on his way to Calcutta. He intends to pursue his way through northern India, Baluchistan and Persia to Shat-el-Arab, whence he will follow the Euphrates to its source and make his way through Asia Minor and Europe. He hopes to arrive in England by the end of 1923.

Mr. Blythe, who has already covered 2,100 miles of his trip, thinks that his last 200 miles in Siam constituted as difficult a country as he shall ever encounter. He carries no firearms or weapons of any kind, and has not yet had need of any. His pack weighs from 20 to 40 pounds and consists of clothes, food, maps, notebooks and simple camp utensils.

Malays and Burmans, the traveler says, are the most friendly people he has encountered so far. The Siamese he ranks last although none of them have been definitely unfriendly.

Describing some of the adventures he has had since leaving Singapore last May, Mr. Blythe says, in part: "I wished to traverse Siam with all possible speed. From Kuen Nung my troubles commenced. Roads in the interior of Siam are nonexistent. Even cartroads are termed by courtesy. For two days I traveled by earth paths, sleeping in farmers' houses, until I reached Patalung, which is a railway town not far from the coast. The place being infested with mosquitoes, I requested the station master to allow me to sleep in the waiting room, which request he granted.

"Leaving Patalung I entered the jungle again, although farms and villages were frequent. All this time I was guiding myself northward by the sun, every day or two tacking across to the railroad in order to keep the direction. There was but little fear of losing my way as the mountains ran parallel to the sea, leaving between a strip of plain, varying from ten to 40 miles in width. The large villages are located between the coast and the railway.

"It was remarkable that I encountered no wild animals and very few snakes, which sometimes I killed and sometimes avoided. The natives were generally friendly enough, although our intercourse was limited owing to my defective Siamese vocabulary.

"Some 40 miles north of Chumphon, I was very puzzled to account for the fact that large expanses of the hillsides were cleared and used as grazing grounds for cattle, as I had not credited the Siamese with sufficient energy to clear large areas of hill jungle. I was told that some 60 years ago a terrific tempest swept across the isthmus of Kra and destroyed all the vegetation.

"From Prechaup Kirikan the country became Siam of the picture books—pagodas perched on seemingly inaccessible crags, natives clad in brilliant-colored clothing; quaint ox carts; priests and monks and monasteries; herds of vicious-looking water buffaloes, and rice fields everywhere. "I entered Bangkok July 23, exactly two months after leaving Singapore. Bangkok, like most large towns of the East, is a curious mixture of West and East, the old and the new. Palatial reinforced concrete buildings are jostled by wretched hovels; foul-smelling, winding lanes lead from spacious boulevards. Pagodas stand a stone's throw from churches.

"The old walls of Bangkok are a fine example of the fortifications as understood by the Oriental nations.

YOUR DRUGGIST

Does not keep Pinkham's Compound. He sells it.

During the year 1920, nearly 3,000,000 bottles of this medicine were shipped from the factory at Lynn, Massachusetts. There is also a branch in Canada and one in Mexico.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the largest sale of any medicine for women's ailments. Every day, more and more women are proving its worth. Made of selected roots and herbs, this compound contains no harmful drugs and can be taken in safety by any woman. —adv.

Miles in length, averaging 30 feet in height by some 20 in thickness and built of massive blocks of granite, they present a fine spectacle. The government houses are built of stone and are imposing structures. About half a dozen of the far-famed white elephants are housed there. The tramway service in Bangkok is the most comfortable of all I have tested in Asia.

"At Ban Dara, my northernmost limit in Siam, I turned southwest, and arrived in a relatively large town named Sawankhaloke. While talking with the schoolmaster he jokingly remarked that I was a spy. The local chief of police immediately became enamored with the idea, and I spent an uncomfortable 30 minutes relieving his doubts."

Rev. E. B. Norton, B. B. Hope, J. T. Horn, F. B. Buch, Dr. A. W. Rawls, Dr. W. E. Howell and J. H. Bankhead. Preceding this announcement, the Minister's Brotherhood held a session, and Bishop Murray retired from the chair, and Rev. Dr. J. C. Persinger, presided. A number of new members were received.

When Bishop Murray assumed the chair, E. M. Glenn, in behalf of the auditing committee, appointed to examine the books of the Treasurer, Paul S. Haley, made his report which showed the accounts properly kept, which report was adopted.

The following ministers were allowed to transfer: Rev. B. F. Hammond to the North Mississippi conference, Rev. H. P. Waits, to the St. Louis Conference, Rev. F. E. Tiffin to the Florida conference.

Thursday Night Session

Thursday night of the conference was the most largely attended one to date. The principal speaker was Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs, and his address was the most intellectual one of the conference. As it was educational night, the Bishop delivered himself of his ideas as to what education is or should be. He said education enabled a man or woman to react toward the experiences of life in the right way.

He said education enabled people to do the thing that needed to be done in the most efficient way. He said education taught us how to properly relate every thing. The speaker emphasized the place of suffering in education. He said that often the "fullest values were realized when the eyes were swimming in tears." The speaker encouraged his audience to discern the difference between bigness and greatness. He said true knowledge taught how to use victory. He decried pessimism, but advised people not to be "ostrich men and women." He said if it were raining it was well to remember that there was no dust. He said "moral horse power" was developed by ability to think that things were getting better.

Religion at the Center of Everything

The Bishop said religion should be at the center of everything. He declared that education must develop character and leadership and equip men to be specialists. It was declared that about 17 percent of the people were efficient, and dominant, and endowed with the power of leadership, but that another 17 percent were delinquents and dependents. 62 percent were declared to belong to the great middle class. It was declared that all classes needed saving, and that the world could not be saved "half rotten and half sound."

He said those endowed with the power to rule might become proud "puffed up" and the like, unless they knew how to properly relate things and themselves. He said the weak might become servile and vile. Ignorance and selfishness were declared to be great enemies. He quoted Judge Gary as saying that the words "employers," and "employees," were out of date, but that all should be fellow workers. He said you should not speak of working for people by with people. It was declared the modern business plan of selling shares of a business to workers in the business was a step in the right direction. The Bishop's definition of a leader was this: "One who knows the way, has a following, and keeps ahead." It was declared that the peril of the specialist was because of his limited view point. Religion, said the speaker, should be the center of business, politics, and social life. He said religion conceived it but liberally should and would relate a man or woman to the whole community.

A Proper Attitude of Paramount Importance

Devoutness of spirit, was declared to be of first importance in character making. The Bishop said the noblest intellects bent to the will of God. Bishop Dobbs emphatically denied the old description of Lord Bacon, that he was "the wisest and the meanest man," on the ground that the two statements were incompatible. He said knowledge was just knowledge but that wisdom was the ability to use knowledge aright. Words were described as "the symbols of ideas", and the declaration was made that when you had heard a man express his thoughts you knew the man.

A Tactful Turn in the Address

The speaker tactfully taught his hearers great truths, while their minds were rested, but in the last half of his wonderful address Bishop Dobbs, narrated in simple style, his experiences in far away Brazil. He described the heroic "plodding" faithful service of the missionaries that had preceded him to Brazil. He told a number of good stories as he said things from the upper chamber of true service. Near the last, the speaker quoted some splendid lines, descriptive of America, as seen by an American homeward bound. And once he quoted just a little of Scott's old but splendid expression "Breathes these the man with soul so dead who never to himself hath said this is my own native land, etc."

The speaker reminded that as regards education the home is the greatest of all schools, and warned his hearers that the home must be kept pure and holy.

Another interesting definition of education given by Bishop Dobbs, was in effect that education was the "shrinkward side of the body; the truthful side of the intellect and the Godward side of the soul." It was declared that education was worthless unless it consecrated the home, the church the school, and the vocation. He said a city was a great thing, but that a citizen infinitely greater; that making a living was a great thing and had to be done, but that making a life was more important; and that a mansion was wonderful, but that a man was more wonderful. The speaker taught that men had power to become the sons of God; and brothers to each other in a real and practical sense. The speaker did not make fun of Napoleon but that killer of men was made to look very much out of date beside Louis Pasteur, who with one side paralyzed, after thirty years work taught France to cure her food until he saved enough French manhood, to produce enough wealth to more than pay for the debt and indemnity of the Franco-Prussian war. The speaker said it was no wonder the French school children put Pasteur above Napoleon Bonaparte. No character or fame, can last except when based on service, according to Bishop Dobbs.

Dr. James A. Duncan in Practical Sermon

Preceding Bishop Dobbs' great deliverance last night the Presidents of the Athens College, the Woman's College at Montgomery and the Birmingham College made brief addresses, contenting themselves with outline addresses—but what was said, was full of punch and to the point.

Dr. James A. Duncan, than whom there is not a more able man in the conference, preached acceptably Thursday afternoon to a large and responsive congregation. Dr. Duncan began by showing how Christ refused a crown "because" said the speaker "what was in His head unfitted it for a crown; and what was in His heart caused Him to choose service, rather than an empty existence."

Beauchamp Speaks
Declaring that Lloyd George "is the greatest statesman in Europe, and its only hope so far as I can see" the Bishop Beauchamp, European Bishop of the Southern Methodist Church drew enthusiastic cheers from the North Alabama conference now in session here. The distinguished visitor made that declaration in the course of a lengthy discussion of European conditions soon after noon Thursday.

In opening the Bishop spoke concerning the Centenary fund, and declared "that whatever the obstacles in the way, they must be removed, and we must go on to victory. Because he was the original chief promoter of the Centenary movement, according to conference authorities here, and because his personal efforts did more to 'put it over' than those of any other man in the connection, what Bishop Beauchamp had to say about obligations to raise the last dollar of the millions due the fund, made a deep impression. Dr. Gram, who has replaced Bishop Beauchamp in the leadership of the Centenary movement, made a stirring address in support of the claims of the Centenary, immediately preceding. He said that all did not have the vision to see it, but that the Centenary would rank with the translation of King James' vision of the Bible, and other great speech making events in the religious world.

The majority of Bishop Beauchamp's address was devoted to his recent religious labors on the continent of Europe and particularly in Poland. In connection with the tribute he paid Lloyd George, the speaker said that he heard George say that the Ex-Premier was determined to stand for the Christian principles as reflected by John Wesley, and that Wesley's influence in Wales was second to that of no man of the entire world.

Great Religious Strategy.

Quoting a European diplomat, who has been serving his profession honorably in Europe for a dozen years, according to the Bishop the speaker said that the determination of Evangelical churches to enter Europe from America was "the greatest religious strategy of this generation." The speaker drew cheers when he quoted a famous religiousist in Europe as opposing the Y. M. C. A., and as saying that it would go, but added that "with these Methodists it is different—they come to stay." In the city of Prague, Bishop Beauchamp said his church had several churches set up lately, and that one of them had a membership of 350 members. He said that one district he worked in in Poland had 14 young men to offer for the ministry lately. This statement was greeted with cheers. The speaker said that under no circumstances should the work in Europe be slowed down, and declared that for money spent on it, Europe promised greater results than perhaps any other mission field. The importance on schooling European immigrants in Christianity, of the "virile kind" was dwelt upon. Emerson was quoted where that Philosopher said, that the people who served others, would awake some day to find themselves famous. Bishop Beauchamp closed by telling of a grave stone inscription that said the man in the grave had in life taken the whole world into his heart, and that in his death the whole world had taken him into its love.

Good Night Stories

Illustrated by Neba Harrison

A CONTENTED HELPER.

GOOD MORNING, there, Friend Bell-buoy," said Mr. Seagull, as he settled on the top of the swinging neighbor. "What a droll life you must lead out in a place like this."

"I don't understand," laughed Bell-buoy. "Pray why do you call it droll?"

"Why, I've been flying around this harbor for a good long time, and I have never yet seen you move out of your place here."

"What need is there to move away from here?" questioned the swaying one. "Where should I go if I were free to move?"

"Any place you were a mind to," replied Mr. Seagull. "Why, I'd simply die if I were tied to one spot the way you are. I'd be lost without my wings!"

"And I'd be lost with them," mused Bell-buoy. "No, my friend, we can't all be fashioned alike. I suppose you have a better chance to warn folks than I at that."

"Warn folks?" and Mr. Seagull laughed so loudly that other seagulls, wanting to be on the fun if there was any, sailed down to light on the bell-buoy's back.

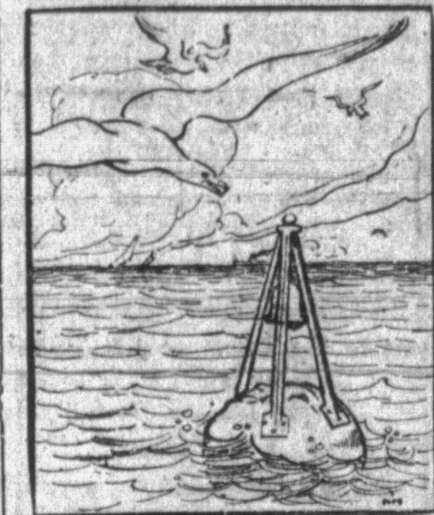

"Don't you seagulls fly around over the water to warn folks of approaching danger?" Bell-buoy asked.

"If should say not," Mr. Seagull replied. "We are the street cleaners of the waterways. What made you think we were guardians?"

"Because that's my job, I guess," said Bell-buoy.

"But are you one of the guardians?" Mr. Seagull asked. "Then I should think you'd strike for a pair of wings. I certainly would."

"It does seem as if you could get along better," joined in another seagull.

"Are You a Guardsman?"

gull, but Bell-buoy only laughed and waved his wings.

"I should think it would be dreadfully tiresome just swaying back and forth in the same old way day in and day out," said Mr. Seagull.

"One should never grow tired while on duty," replied Bell-buoy, and his bell tinkled a warning to a passing ship.

"Now, if that ship had passed over the spot on which I'm standing it would have been in great peril. It might have sunk. That's why I wasn't given wings. I'm anchored with heavy chains to the dangerous rocks under me, and I'm only too happy to be of some help. Why, I heard a sailor say one day that seamen could get along without us."

"I've often wondered why there were so many of you folks scattered around the harbor," said Mr. Seagull.

"My goodness," replied Bell-buoy. "I heard a seaman say that we buoy guard over two thousand miles of the general seacoast of the United States, and on the gulf of Mexico more than eighteen hundred miles. I think he said we safeguard about the same territory on the Pacific ocean, while in Alaska there are nearly forty-eight hundred miles of seacoast. Now, how could we ever do it with wings? No, the best way is the way we are anchored, and I'm sure if you asked any of us you'd get the same answer."

"Well, I guess you're right," said Mr. Seagull. "We can't all be built the same way. We cleaners of the waterways have our work, and you have yours. And if we don't get busy neither of us will get through."

So away the seagulls flew, and Bell-buoy went on with his cheery ringing to warn folks of the dangerous rocks under him.

"JAZZ" PLAYERS INVADE ENGLAND

(Associated Press.)
LONDON, NOV. 2.—The recent influx of American jazz bandmen to supply music for the constantly increasing numbers of Britons who have succumbed to the fox trot has had the effect of spreading considerable alarm among English musicians, many of whom claim to have thereby lost their jobs.

Recently there have been numerous representations to the Home Secretary alleging that American musicians have been allowed to enter England in violation of the Alien Restriction Act. It is claimed that a large number of Americans jazzers have come here posing as students or tourists, while they already have contracts in their pockets calling for large salaries, some as high as sixty pounds a week.

Musicians' unions are considering a campaign to boycott all hotels and music halls employing alien jazz players to the exclusion of British. The unions claim to have the support of the British Legion.

The craze for American jazz dancing in London has reached wide proportions, as is witnessed by the large numbers of advertisements in the daily papers listing instructions in latest ball room dances, and the many places furnishing jazz music.

SAVED SICK SPELLS

Black-Draught Found Valuable by a Texas Farmer, Who Has Known Its Usefulness Over 30 Years.

Naples, Texas.—"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught for years. I can safely say for more than 30 years," declares Mr. H. H. Cromer, a substantial, well-known farmer, residing out from here on Route 3.

"I am 43 years old, and when a small boy I had indigestion and was puny and my folks gave me a liver regulator. Then Black-Draught was advertised and we heard of it.

"I began to take Black-Draught, and have used it, when needed, ever since. I use Black-Draught now in my home, and certainly recommend it for any liver trouble.

"I have given it a thorough trial, and after thirty years can say Black-Draught is my stand-by. It has saved me many sick spells."

Mr. Cromer writes that he is "never out of Black-Draught," and says several of his neighbors prefer it to any other liver medicine. "I always recommend Black-Draught to my friends," he adds.

This valuable, old, powdered liver medicine is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and has none of the bad effects so often observed from the use of calomel, or other powerful mineral drugs. Be sure to get the genuine, Thedford's.

HI-Y BOYS WILL HELP RED CROSS

Hi-Y boys will begin distribution of advertising matter tomorrow for the annual Red Cross roll call which begins here on November 11, Armistice Day. This announcement was made today by W. W. Rahm, general chairman of the campaign, following a meeting of committees held last night in the rooms of the Albany chamber of commerce.

Mr. Rahm stated that complete lists of committees for all beats in this territory will be announced within the next few days. He declared he was very much encouraged because of the co-operation being extended the workers.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Peck Held

HARTSELLE, Nov. 3.—Funeral services for Mrs. Eliette Peck, who died at the Benevolent hospital Thursday morning at 7 o'clock, following an illness which extended over a period of two weeks from blood poisoning, was held at 2:30 o'clock from the First Christian church. Her pastor, Rev. Robert Harrell, assisted by Rev. R. M. Howell of the Methodist church, conducted the services.

The large church was filled with sorrowing friends and relatives, who came to pay their last tribute of respect to one who in life, had so completely woven a fabric of love and admiration in the minds and affections of those who knew the splendid side of her Christian life, and deep sorrow was plainly visible over the entire congregation.

After appropriate hymns by a mixed quartette, her pastor feelingly portrayed her splendid qualities of both mind and heart, and commended them to the large audience. Rev. Howell followed along similar lines, and offered consolation and comfort to the bereaved ones in the fact that, the deceased left behind a record of good deeds, erecting thereby her own monument which will survive the wrecks of time.

The floral offerings were many and beautiful, coming from all the towns nearby where she was so well and favorably known, and attested in an impressive manner the high esteem in which she was held. After the services at the church, to long funeral procession begun its march to the Silent City of the dead, where was deposited the mortal remains of one who had fallen, but had left a memory expressed in a life of good deeds, which will grow more fragrant with the years.

Germans Fearing Possible Building Material Trust

(Associated Press.)

BERLIN, OCT. 31.—The specter of a gigantic monopoly in building materials in Germany is raised by critics of the restoration agreement recently concluded between Hugo Stinnes, the industrial magnate, and Marquis de Lubersac, president of the co-operative associations in the French devastated areas.

It is pointed out in these that the combine organized by Stinnes for carrying out the contract takes on the nature of a great trust. It is foreseen that the deliveries involved will not only constitute a heavy drain on materials needed for reconstruction at home, but will mean further rises in building costs which already are more than eighty times higher than they were before the war. Stinnes' "trust" the critics assert, will be in a position to dictate the costs of construction material in the domestic market.

This angle of the deal is viewed with all the more concern because of the building shortage which already has reached an acute stage in Germany. The case of Berlin is cited as an example. Before the war, 40,000 family dwellings were erected annually in the German capital, but since 1914 building operations here have been virtually at a standstill. Thus Berlin's construction alone is some 300,000 dwellings in arrears.

It is further argued that the deliveries of seven million gold marks worth of goods to France in four and one-half years must inevitably lead to further inflation in the German mark. The amount is computed at the current rate as equivalent to some 250 to 300 millions of paper marks. The question is raised as to how the German money-printing presses ever will be able to cope with the demand for currency which will follow.

One of the bitterest opponents to the Stinnes-Lubersac agreements is the press service SOZIALISTISCHE KORRESPONDENZ.

Commencing the high praises sung for Stinnes in other quarters when the deal was announced, this agency expresses the conviction that the 6 per cent commission accruing to him was his only guiding consideration. It calls attention to the magnates' former opposition to the Wiesbaden agreement and other reparations policies, and says: But when Marquis de Lubersac approached Stinnes, Stinnes suddenly became a "fulfillment" politician, Rathenau's heir, and the winner of ninety million gold marks profit.

The SUEDEUTSCHE MONATSHEFTE, a monthly publication issued at Munich, has published a leading article headed "The Sabotage of Reconstruction by the French Government." It contends that the sufferers in the French devastated areas have long been in favor of co-operation with the Germans for reconstruction of the regions, but were opposed in this by the French Government and French builders.

In the same issue appears a review of the progress made in East Prussian reconstruction following the damage done by the Russians early in the war. It is cited as evidence of what might have been done in France had operations been commenced immediately after the close of hostilities, and had there been the "will" for reconstruction as there was in Germany.

This review states that more than 20,000 buildings were demolished and some 100,000 more or less seriously damaged during the Russian occupation in 1914 and 1915. All personal property of any value belonging to the inhabitants was taken to Russia, it alleges, and in February 1915, when the territory was freed, "scarcely a domestic animal was in evidence except a few half-crazed cats and dogs."

On the basis of pre-war prices, the material damage in East Prussia was estimated at some 1,500,000,000 gold marks. Before the end of the war, the review states, more than half of

PAYING FOR THE HOME

"Up to two years ago my money all went to doctors and medicine for my stomach trouble. I was constantly filled with gas and no medicine helped me permanently until I tried a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy at that time with excellent results. Now I am using my money in paying for a home." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. All druggists everywhere.

A TRUE RAT STORY

Auburntown, Ala. 6-22-22.
Dear Sirs: Mr. Robert T. Donnell of Auburntown, Ala. came in our store the other day and wanted something to kill rats, so I sold him a box Stearns' Rat Paste. And he put some paste on six biscuits that night and the next morning he found fifty-four big rats. And the second night he put out four more biscuits with paste on them, and the second morning he found seventeen more rats, making a total of seventy-one rats in two nights, and there were lots more that he did not find.

This is some big rat tale, but, nevertheless, it is so. Just thought would write to let you know that your rat paste is good.
Respectfully, KENNEDY BROTHERS.
